WORLD BEE DAY

The United Nations Postal Administration commemorates World Bee Day on 20 May 2019 by issuing three mini-sheets showcasing bees and flowers.

The United Nations designated 20 May as World Bee Day, because of Slovenia’s initiative in 2017 to raise public awareness about the importance of bees, the threats they face, the need to protect their natural habitats and their contribution to sustainable development.

Bees and other pollinators, such as butterflies, bats and hummingbirds, are increasingly under threat from human activities. Pollinators allow many plants, including many food crops, to reproduce. Not only do pollinators contribute directly to food security, they are also key to conserving biodiversity—a cornerstone of the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals.

Close to three-quarters of the world’s crop species depend, at least in part, on bees and other pollinators. Pollinators play an essential role in helping to feed a rising world population in a sustainable way and help maintain biodiversity and a vibrant ecosystem. They contribute to building resilient livelihoods and creating new jobs, especially for small farm owners, satisfying the growing demand for healthy, nutritious food, as well as non-food products.

Carla Mucavi, Director of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO) Liaison Office in New York, commented: “Bees play a crucial role in increasing crop yields and promoting food security and nutrition. Without bees, [we] cannot achieve a world without hunger. World Bee Day recognizes the importance of these tiny helpers and will increase awareness of the need to protect them.”

The bees and flowers featured on the sheets are as follows:

NEW YORK SHEET:
Bee: Cadeguala (diphaglossine bees)
Flower: Corydalis flavula

GENEVA SHEET:
Bee: Bombus (bumblebee)
Flower: Lobelia cardinalis

VIENNA SHEET:
Bee: Melissodes (long-horned bees)
Flower: Scutellaria lateriflora

The photographs of the bees were provided by the Patuxent Wildlife Research Center of the United States Geological Survey.

To honour the former United Nations Secretary-General Kofi Annan, the United Nations Postal Administration will issue a definitive stamp on 31 May 2019.

The $1.30 stamp features a portrait of the late Kofi Annan and was illustrated by the famous artist and engraver Martin Mörck (Norway). The quote on the stamp reads “To live is to choose. But to choose well, you must know who you are and what you stand for, where you want to go and why you want to get there.”

Kofi A. Annan of Ghana was the seventh Secretary-General of the United Nations. He served from 1997 to 2006 and was the first to emerge from the ranks of United Nations staff.

As Secretary-General, Mr. Annan gave priority to revitalizing the United Nations through a comprehensive programme of reform; strengthening the Organization’s traditional work in the areas of development and the maintenance of international peace and security; advocating human rights, the rule of law and the universal values of equality, tolerance and human dignity; restoring public confidence in the Organization by reaching out to new partners and, in his words, by “bringing the United Nations closer to the people”. Mr. Annan also took a leading role in mobilizing the international community in the battle against HIV/AIDS and against the global terrorist threat.

Mr. Annan was awarded the 2001 Nobel Prize for Peace, jointly with the Organization. He also received numerous honorary degrees and many other national and international prizes, medals and honours.

Upon leaving the United Nations, Mr. Annan established the Kofi Annan Foundation in 2007. The Foundation is an independent, not-for-profit organization that works to promote better global governance and strengthen the capacities of people and countries to achieve a fairer, more peaceful world.

Kofi Annan died on 18 August 2018 in Bern, Switzerland, at the age of 80.

In 2019, the International Labour Organization—the oldest United Nations specialized agency—celebrates its 100th anniversary. To commemorate this milestone, UNPA is issuing three stamp sheets in a se-tenant strip of five format and a souvenir card. Each sheet of 20 stamps will accommodate four se-tenant strips of five stamps.

The International Labour Organization (ILO) is a United Nations agency dealing with the world of work. It sets international labour standards, promotes rights at work and encourages decent employment opportunities, the enhancement of social protection and the strengthening of dialogue on work-related issues.

The ILO was created in 1919, as part of the Treaty of Versailles, which ended World War I, to reflect the belief that universal and lasting peace can be accomplished only if it is based on social justice. In 1946, the ILO became a specialized agency of the United Nations. Its unique structure gives an equal voice to workers, employers and governments that provide a platform for promoting decent work for all women and men.

Today, the ILO’s Decent Work agenda helps advance the economic and working conditions that give all workers, employers and governments a stake in lasting peace, prosperity and progress. The importance of decent work in achieving sustainable development is highlighted by Sustainable Development Goals, which aim to promote sustained, inclusive and sustainable economic growth, full and productive employment and decent work for all.

THE ARTIST: OWEN SMITH (USA)

Owen Smith’s award-winning illustrations have appeared in Rolling Stone, Sports Illustrated, Time, Esquire, and the New York Times. He has created 18 covers for The New Yorker. Currently he is working on an illustrated edition of John Steinbeck’s The Grapes of Wrath. He has designed mosaics, murals, and relief sculptures for public spaces including the 36th Street subway station in Brooklyn, New York, and Laguna Honda Hospital in San Francisco. Owen regularly shows his work in galleries in Los Angeles and New York. He lives with his wife and two sons in the San Francisco Bay Area. For the past six years, Owen has chaired the Illustration Program at California College of the Arts.

STATEMENT FROM THE ARTIST ON HIS WORK

I have long been interested in art that focuses on the common aspirations and the struggles of ordinary people. I am influenced by the murals created during the Great Depression that depict the dignity of labour. The ILO advocates for social justice and work standards worldwide. These stamps celebrate the remarkable history and accomplishments of the ILO.
The ILO Centenary

The International Labour Organization (ILO) celebrates its centenary year in 2019. The ILO was founded on the belief that universal and lasting peace can be established only if a just social order is constructed. It is a unique institution that brings together governments, employers and workers in dialogue for all women and men, as the basis for peace and prosperity.

Throughout its 100 years, the ILO has always understood that dialogue is the answer to individual questions and the challenge to common issues. It is unequivocal in its advocacy for key issues, employing and mobilizing a wide variety of instruments to that end. This stamp is issued today as a mark of the ILO’s role in the dialogue for social progress and justice.

António Guterres, Secretary-General of The United Nations
Guy Ryder, Director-General of the International Labour Organization

UNPA will issue two special event three-stamp mini-sheets featuring the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) Global Animal Goodwill Ambassadors—Panda Twins Qiqi and Diandian. The stamp sheets commemorate the China World Stamp Expo and Singpex 36th AISE. The sheets are consecutively numbered.

In January 2016, UNDP and China’s Chengdu Panda Base announced two baby panda cubs as the first ever Animal Ambassadors for the Sustainable Development Goals. The cubs were named with the participation of more than 5,000 people from 116 nations. Together, the names Qiqi and Diandian mean “the beginning of a journey”.

The cubs, both male, were born a few months before world leaders convened at the United Nations in New York to adopt the new Sustainable Development Goals, also known as the Global Goals, they are part of a bold agenda that aims at eradicating poverty and tackling some of the most pressing challenges facing the world today.

Pandas symbolize the plight of the world’s diminishing wildlife in the face of climate change and the loss of natural habitats. But that plight doesn’t affect just wildlife like the pandas—both biodiversity and healthy ecosystems are essential for improving and sustaining human well-being. In fact, addressing the loss of biodiversity is one of the Sustainable Development Goals.

We hope the pandas will help inspire people to engage with the goals and to raise awareness of our efforts to promote sustainable development around the world.

For many decades now, Vienna has positioned itself as a neutral bridge builder between East and West. Forty years ago, it finally happened—the Vienna International Centre was opened and has ever since made significant contributions to world peace. At the same time, the third UNPA office after New York in 1951 and Geneva in 1969 opened in Vienna in August 1979 and issued the first United Nations stamps in Austrian schillings.

On Friday, 23 August 2019, UNPA will issue a new personalized stamp sheet to commemorate 40 years of the Vienna International Centre as well as the fortieth anniversary of UNPA Vienna. The sheet, in the denomination of €0,90 features 10 stamps with five different designs of the Vienna International Centre in Hundertwasser style. The tabs next to the stamps picture the Vienna International Centre from different angles. The background design shows the United Nations emblem, as well as the official “40 years United Nations Vienna” logo and the text “Celebrating 40 years, UNPA/Vienna International Centre (1979–2019).”
